

GHUMI'S

Week 6

I hope you have all been practicing your videos and especially our song. We hope to join the instrumental music and choir for an evening performance at the end of next term week 8.

We will be practicing this song every week, but in half an hour there is not much time so practice, practice, practice.

I will leave the song link at the end of the lesson each week so it's there to remind you. There is an individual file on the school GHUMI'S page on the school website as well.

Introducing D Chord

- D chord can be played a few ways. You can hyper extend (or pressing down flat to the first knuckle) your 1st finger. I play the D chord like the picture above. I jam my 3 fingers, 1st, 2nd and 3rd in the space between the frets. You could also use the same triangular shape like G7 finger positioning, if it feels easier for you, to fit your fingers in there. As long as one finger is on each string between the frets.
- Here's a little video to explain and practice to.

D Chord

<https://youtu.be/Ku5-ZxA02xA>

HOMWORK

- The Lion Sleeps Tonight You Tube Video to play along to.

<https://youtu.be/sz9RIEuii00>

- Here is the link to the sheet music for

The Lion Sleeps Tonight

The strum pattern is Down Up, Down Up in 4/4 time. 4 beats to the bar.

<https://glasshousemountainsss.eq.edu.au/supportandresources/formsanddocuments/documents/ukulele%20club/edited%20version%20of%20lion%20sleeps%20tonight.pdf>

- Here is a fun song for you to play with the chords that we have learnt so far. It's a good song for the dreaded G7 too. Don't forget you can slow it down in the settings cog.

Surfin' USA

<https://youtu.be/lFfCAxv43TM>

- Piece of information: If you are looking at songs to play, you can play your G7 instead of the G chord. We will learn G, probably next week in fact, but you can swap it for the G7.
- I'm thinking I may do a workshop on the holidays, so watch this space.

Happy
Strumming!

